AAF Examines Impact Of Dodd-Frank On Credit Availability To Consumers

MARISOL GARIBAY | JANUARY 25, 2016

New research from the American Action Forum (@AAF) details how the Dodd-Frank Act is impacting consumers. The AAF research finds that the Dodd-Frank Act has reduced revolving credit availability to consumers by 14.5 percent.

The Dodd-Frank Act, signed into law in 2010, has so far imposed $30 billion in final regulatory costs and 72 million hours of paperwork compliance.
