AAF Research Examines the CFPB's Actions in Light of Recent Court Ruling

PATRICK HEFFLINGER | OCTOBER 18, 2016

Today the American Action Forum (@AAF) released new research examining the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (CFPB) and its rulemaking in light of the recent court ruling finding that the agency's structure is unconstitutional. AAF found that in the CFPB's brief existence it has already issued $2.8 billion in costs and has added 16.9 million paperwork hours.
