

Press Release

AAF Research Finds Tax Reform Could Help Make Clean Energy Competitive

PATRICK HEFFLINGER | AUGUST 30, 2017

The American Action Forum (@AAF) released new research examining how the current tax code penalizes innovation in the energy sector. The research explains how the right tax reforms can encourage cleaner, safer, and cheaper energy alternatives in a revenue-neutral manner.

Click here to view the research.

AAF released a related infographic that illustrates the downside of existing energy tax credits.

Please see an op-ed by AAF's Philip Rossetti on why tax policy matters to energy innovation.