

Press Release

Scoring the New Proposal from the Health Care Consensus Group

ANDREW EVANS | OCTOBER 22, 2020

With the future of the Affordable Care Act again in doubt, AAF's Center for Health and Economy has modeled the potential impact of a new consensus-group proposal for federal health legislation. According to the projection, the Health Care Consensus Group's new proposal would reduce premiums by as much as 24 percent in 2022 and result in 4 million more people purchasing insurance by 2030.

Read the Full Modeling Results

See the Proposal