

RAISING THE MINIMUM WAGE IN NEVADA

Lawmakers in Nevada are working to raise the minimum wage to $14 by 2025 after a recently vetoed bill would have raised the state's minimum wage to $12 by 2022. While this may be well-intended, research has shown that this puts low-skilled workers at risk of losing their jobs.

By 2025, Nevada's employment would be 3.6% lower due to a $12 minimum wage.

Nevada is projected to create 313,300 jobs between 2014 and 2024. A $14 minimum wage would eliminate 36.1% of those jobs.

The leisure and hospitality sector created 42,000 jobs since the end of the Great Recession. These recovery jobs and more would be lost.

With a particularly weak economic recovery from the Great Recession and a labor market dependent on the leisure and hospitality industry, Nevada is in no position to absorb these job losses.
